Increasing the Indian Judiciary's Burden

Emotional Appeal And The Growing Burden When The Law Is The Last Option Regarding Indian Judiciary

"Not all grievances are legal, even though they may all be genuine." Indian courts are being involved in disputes that go well beyond the purview of conventional legal wrongs in the current legal environment. What was once a forum for upholding rights and resolving constitutional disputes is now frequently used as a sounding board for interpersonal conflict and emotional damage.